CLASS POEM

"Our Tribute"

Alma Mater, Alma Mater,
True to thee we stand;
Clinging to thy pillars of learning
Built on rock, but never sand.

You took us in our years of youth,
Of green unworldly days,
And with a hand both firm and wise
Set us on our chosen ways.

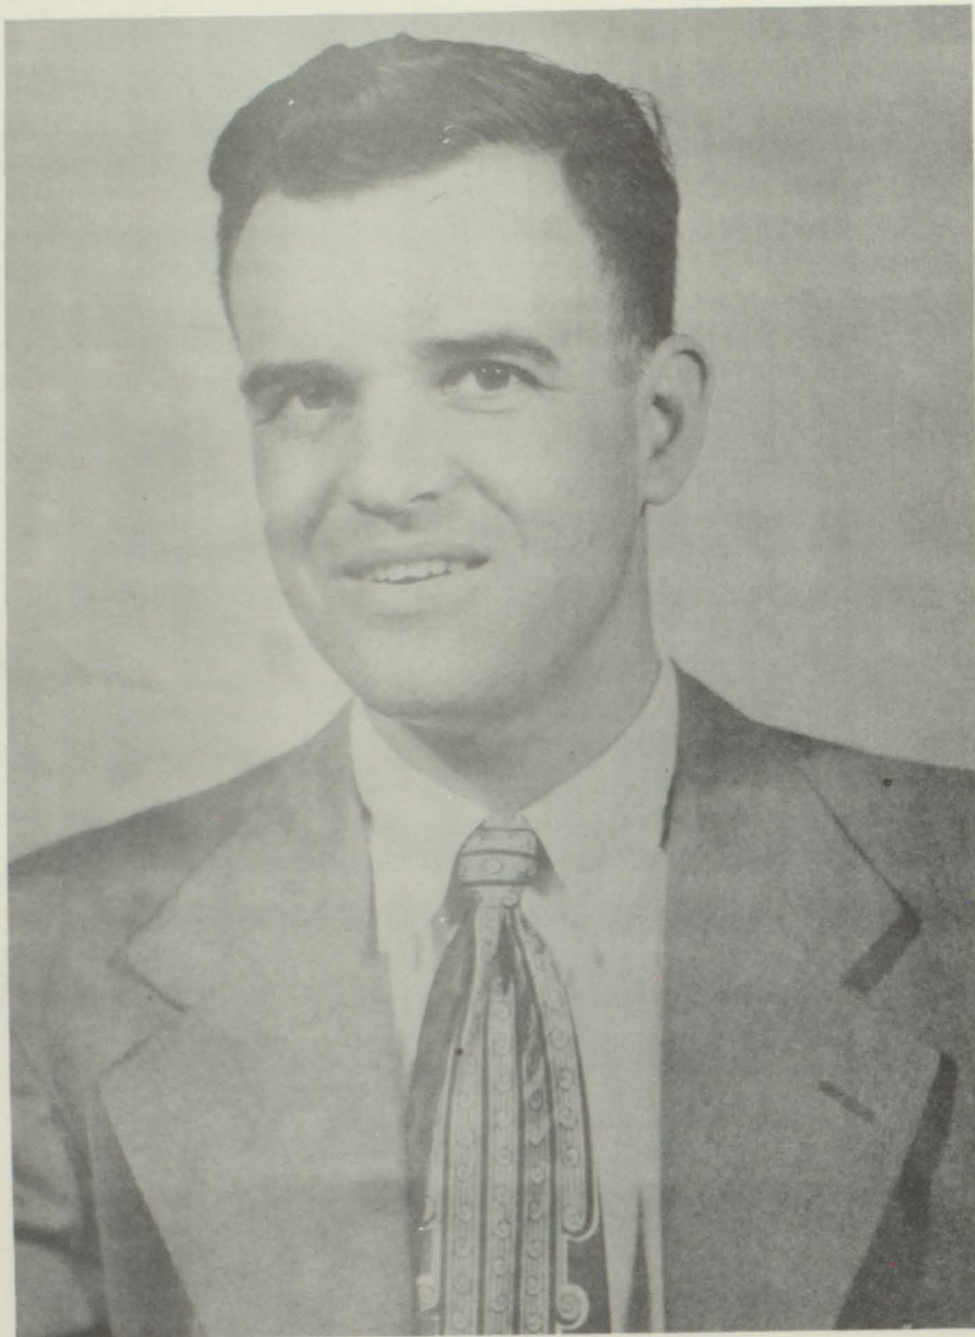

In you we knew a friendly leader,
With you our hearts will ever lie;
Nestled in this Green Mount village,
'Neath her green guard standing by.

As our high school years are ending
And we start along life's path,
Our reluctant eyes turn backward
Where we find a tear, a laugh.

From tender years to blooming youth,
Helped by thy firm but loving grasp,
We scaled the rough, uncertain heights,
And now release thy clasp.

We thank you now and ever - - -
Here we crept, but soon we'll walk.
Alma Mater, Alma Mater,
Firm and lasting as a rock.

BRISTOL HIGH

(Tune "America")

We're leaving Bristol High,
We'll love her till we die,
This is our day.

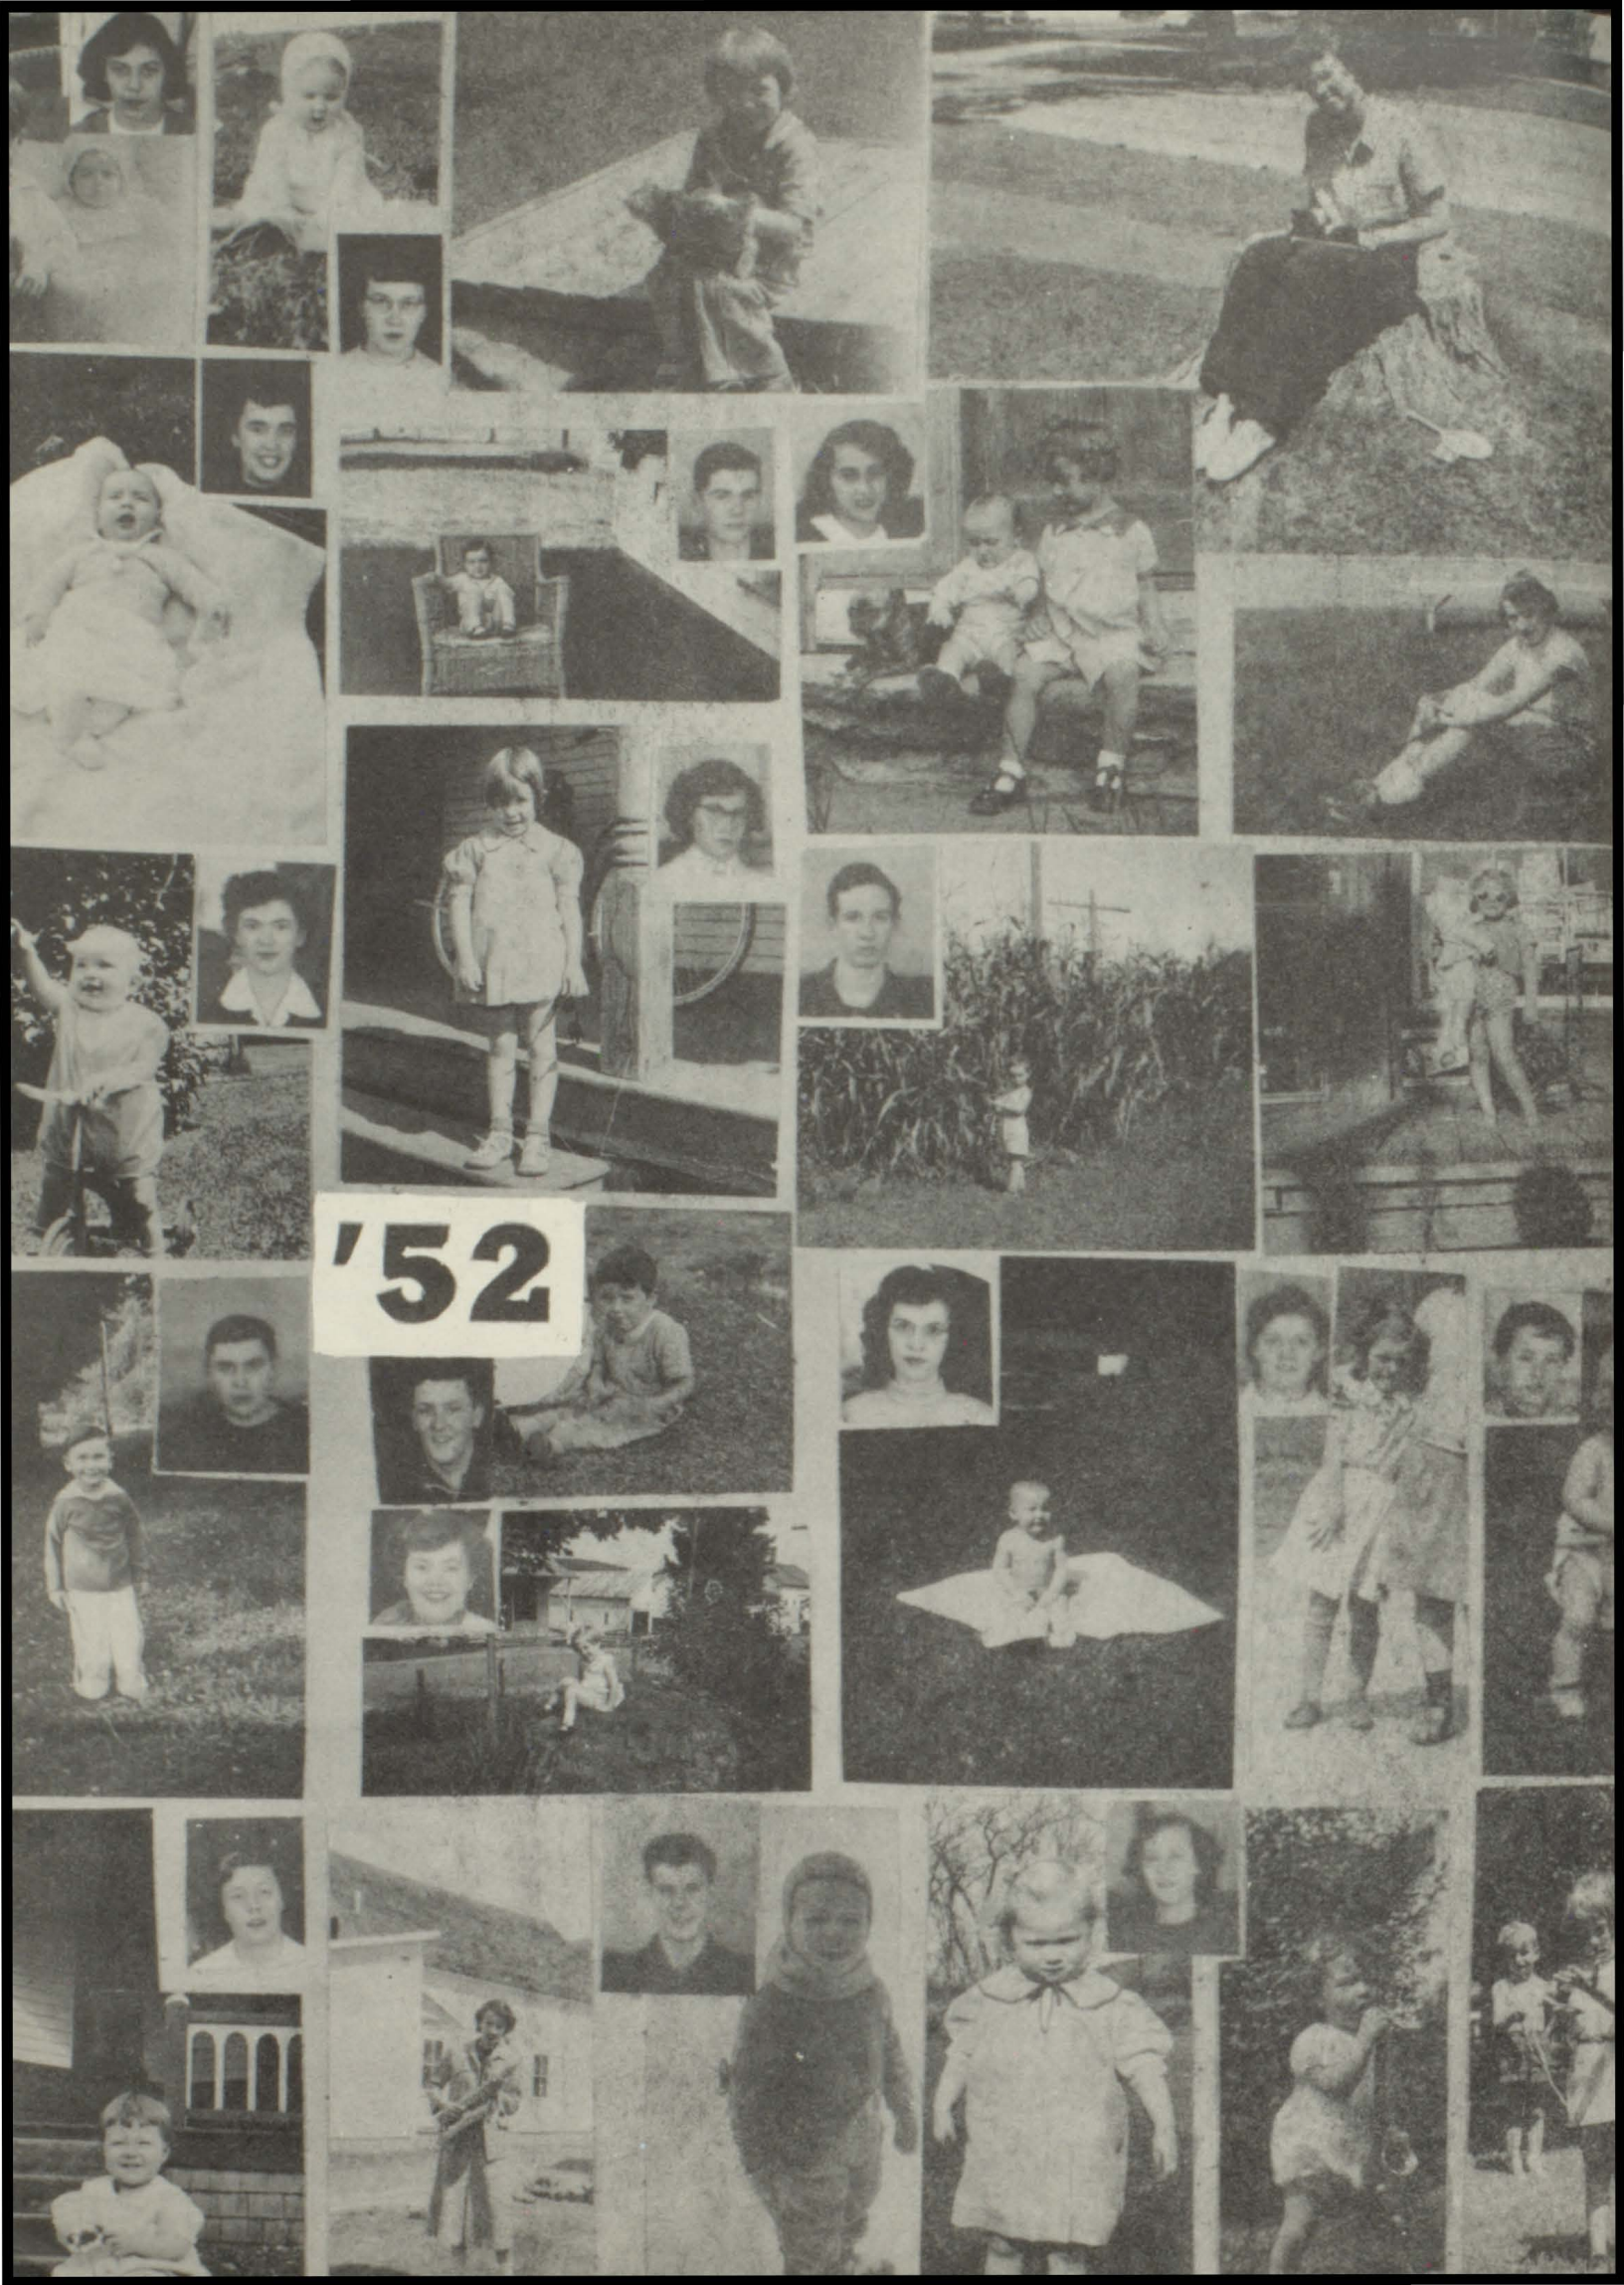

To friends we say so-long.
Our love is in this song,
Our faith is in our God,
Let come what may.

Bristol High, O, Bristol High,
We bid thee fond adieu.
Through smiles and tears,
Throughout the years,
We'll think fond thoughts of you.

CLASS HISTORY

by Allene Denny, Nancy Norton, and Patricia Orvis

On a bright sunny morning in September, 1946, an energetic crew assembled to start work on the V-52 Rocket. We first had to receive training from Instructor Martin before we could begin to build. Since we had worked hard all year, the crew thought a picnic would be just the thing to end our trials. Our instructor firmly announced that a picnic would be out of the question! Heart-broken we gathered up our belongings and trudged home. Starting the 8th year, our ambitious crew gave a surprise birthday party for Miss Martin. The next event of the year was our Leap Year sleigh ride. Having padded ourselves with a sufficient layer of knowledge for one year, we decided that a picnic at Bayside would be a release for our stored up exuberance. During these two years we found that we had managed to construct the platform from where our rocket, the V-52, would be launched.

By Sept., 1948, recruits had been gathered from Lincoln, Starksboro, and Monkton, and we began work on the ship itself under our able new commander, Richard G. Billard. The upper-classmen, thinking our plan crazy, tried to eliminate us with the torture cure, Freshman Initiation, but being dauntless we pulled through stronger than ever. With determined labor and being scared filling all our time, we had little time for activities. We did have two booths at the school fair, which helped a promising treasury.

One morning about three months before school closed the crew was startled to find a refugee from Vergennes High School at the job. Cloy Mallow had heard about our great plan and decided to join us. By June the framework of the rocket was finished, so we celebrated with a picnic at Bayside; then took three months vacation. During the summer disaster struck. Allene Denny had been disabled with polio, and couldn't rejoin our forces until the space ship was nearly completed.

When school reopened in September we went at our work with even more vigor for the ship was nearly finished. School had hardly begun when we were joined by several more recruits who had heard of our fine reputation. Evie Wyman came from Hinesburg High, John Burbank from Brandon High, and Gordon ("Swabby") Comstock. The upper-classmen had at last recognized our true worth and began treating us with more respect, especially after we made enough money at the school fair, selling Bristol shirts, and sponsoring a record dance, to pay for our space ship and start a substantial treasury. They really took notice when we gave our first assembly in the form of a talent show. The space ship, Rocket V-52, was at last completed. Only a little more knowledge had to be stowed away, and we could prepare to launch for a trial flight to the moon. To rest up for the big trip, we had a picnic at Branbury Beach, Lake Dunmore.

In 1950 came the biggest test of all. With six years of hard work and experiences behind us, we had become Juniors, but more important, our space ship was ready for a trial flight to the moon. Money was no worry, for we had sponsored a successful bazaar on the park that summer, and we still had our able commander, Mr. Billard. But weighted down as we were with success, honor, talent and responsibility, could we ever get into the air, say nothing about reaching the outer universe? Also, a new crew member had been added. Paul Sherwin, after falling overboard on a sail with the "Good Ship '51", had been washed ashore in a tidal wave. He proved a good addition, however, and became our pilot. At approximately 8:45 one morning in September the motors of the "Rocket V-'52" were started, and warmed up, and at 9:00 A.M. there was a blinding flash, a rush of air after which the earth seemed to shake violently, and a rousing cheer from the public went up. We soon left the earth and set our controls along the Milky Way. Early in our flight Millie Brown stopped off at the Star of Love and became hopelessly lost in the Stardust of Matrimony.

After two months of flight we landed at Mars for rest and recreation, where we put on a "Harvest Hop", one of two successful dances that year. It was also here that Richard Haines and Frank Hier were inspired by the Men of Mars, and both parachuted back to earth before the year was over to join the Navy. William Wells got homesick when he saw their remote control farming and hitched a ride home on a shooting star.

Midway in our flight we had motor trouble caused by Mid-Years which had come aboard with Mr. Marshall in September. It was doubtful if we could make repairs in mid-air, but everyone passed, and the V-52 was saved.

Money and food ran out 100,000 miles from the moon, so we radioed ahead for reservations at a minor planet, and gave a Chicken Pie Supper, which profited us enough to complete the trip.

At last the moon! We found it inhabited by tired, struggling upper-classmen who were about to graduate. Taking pity on them, we gave them a royal and unprecedented Prom at a swank resort, The Bristol Inn. This drew heavily on our reserves, so we made a quick trip back to earth for re-fueling with money. On the way Caroline Wheeler stopped to visit Millie and she also befell the fate of Matrimony.

September, 1951! This was the big year. We had lost our able commander, Mr. Billard, and our fate looked doubtful for awhile, but our doubts were soon removed by the appointment of W. Roy LeBaron as new commander. Our treasury had been repaid by another bazaar in the summer. Tension filled the air as preparations for launching were made. It would be a long hard pull to Graduation Galaxy. To make matters worse we found the wooden rocket had become infested with termites known as Freshmen. The extermination treatment, Freshman Initiation, was soon administered, but they were stubborn little creatures, and only after we threw a reception and coke party for them would they return to their lowly places. Amidst the mad rush of posing, setting type for the best "Deer Leap" ever, choosing launching robes, and invitations, and exams, we found time to foster another successful "Hop", a very successful Chicken Pie Supper, a record dance, sell hot dogs at town meeting, and add the last shining touches to this noble ship, undeniably the first of its type.

As a last great venture we put on a Senior Play, "Almost Eighteen", which, like all our other accomplishments, excelled anything ever seen in Bristol.

On the historic date of June 10, 1952, the "Rocket V-52", launched on the eve of June 6, at the Junior Prom, made a successful landing at Graduation Galaxy, where it would open a new way of thinking in a wavering world. To the haunting strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" the twenty-two of '52 looked out upon a new, ever more challenging way of life. We have entrusted the affairs of B.H.S.; athletics, drama, Student Council, "Deer Leap", etc. in the capable hands of the Astronomers '53. But of course we don't expect things will ever quite equal heights attained by the Class of '52. We now say "Best of Luck" in everything, you under-classmen, as we proceed "En Avant".

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

Being of sound mind (?) and body, we the Senior Class of 1952 hereby bequeath to our followers, the following to use as they may so desire:

- Barbara Baslow - her "ingenuity" and high marks to Claude Brassard.
Donnie Bedard - his "shuttle" and badminton racket to Paul Craig.
John Burbank - his ability to get along with the faculty and his good manners to John Cambridge.
Marie Carl - her sense of humor to Laura Rathbun.
Charlene Craig - her art of making love to Bobby Bedard, to Aldron Hunt (Senior Play).
Allene Denny - her driving ability to Gerald Scribner. Especially her affinity to the clutch.
Beatrice Hallock - her red hair to Charlie Hoag to go with his well known temper.
Flora Hanson - her commercial ability to Joan Hill. (Keep up the good work).
Dorothy Hill - her artistic ability to Bobby Bedard.
Connie Lattrell - leaves Madeline Lattrell her memoirs on coaching and various other things she taught her.
Jack Leonard - his ability to go steady to Charles Lafley.
Cloy Mallow - her title of night hawk to Buzz Aldrich.
Patricia Masterson - a megaphone to her sister so she can make herself heard and wont wear out the middle of the car seat.
Jean Morrill - her interest in the Junior Class to Patty Desorda. (In case the Marines get him, take good care of him Uncle Sam).
Carroll Morrison - his ability to stay awake 'till the "wee hours" to Ronald Deneve.
Nancy Norton - her knitting needles and knitting interest to her sister. (Carolee Scribner).
Lawrence Orvis - his "crystal ball" to Bobby Bedard. (It's specialties being physics and chemistry).
Pat Orvis - her diet book to Paul Tomlinson to fill out his curves.
Paul Sherwin - his interest in the fairer sex to Stanley Smith.
Sandra Sturgeon - her athletic ability to the B.B. forwards of '53.
Donna Taft - her modesty to Bill Paine.
Evie Wyman - her male fan-club to Marilyn Shae.

CLASS PROPHECY

Written by . . . Barbara Baslow

Sandra Sturgeon

Marie Carl

At Graduation Galaxy in the year 1962, the former class of '52 set about to schedule the V-'52 Rocket for a journey back to their Alma Mater B.H.S. to see what changes ten years has brought about.

As we enter the V-52 Rocket we're greeted by our cute Airline stewardess, Marie Carl. Further on in the ship we encounter Carroll Morrison, our co-pilot. As we take our seats, our pilot, Jack Leonard, enters the cockpit to take over the controls. Our signal for the take-off is received from our radio operator, Paul Sherwin. As we pass the planet, Junius, we witness a great mine explosion. Immediately landing to see if we can be of any assistance, nurses Barbara Baslow, Cloy Mallow, and our well known doctor, Patricia Orvis leave the rocket and rush to the scene of the accident. We recognize the wounded brought aboard as Allene Denny, Sandra Sturgeon, and Donna Taft who were teaching in a nearby school at the time of the catastrophe. As the rocket gets under motion once more, we look around at some of the passengers. Seated in front of us is John Burbank taking notes on the accident for his paper, THE NAVAL REVIEW. Directly across from him are housewives Dorothy Hill and Patricia Masterson who are compiling a new cook book. Walking down the aisle we stop to chat with Jean Morrill who is sketching the outline of a new hair-do to be tried at her beauty shop upon return. Sitting in the seat next to her we recognize Char Craig, fashionably dressed, who is debating as to whether her store for whom she is buyer would sell more Merry Mermaid or Catamina bathing suits. Further on up the ship, are seated Nancy Norton, director of physical education at Star University, and Evelyn Wyman, now a dental hygienist. Our last stop is the planet Unitata. Flora Hanson, Connie Lattrell, and Beatrice Hallock, now secretaries of a flourishing television studio, board the V-52 here. Hurrying toward us we see Donald Bedard, the executive of the See-More T.V. Studio, and Lawrence Orvis, who is complaining about the television service at his dude ranch.

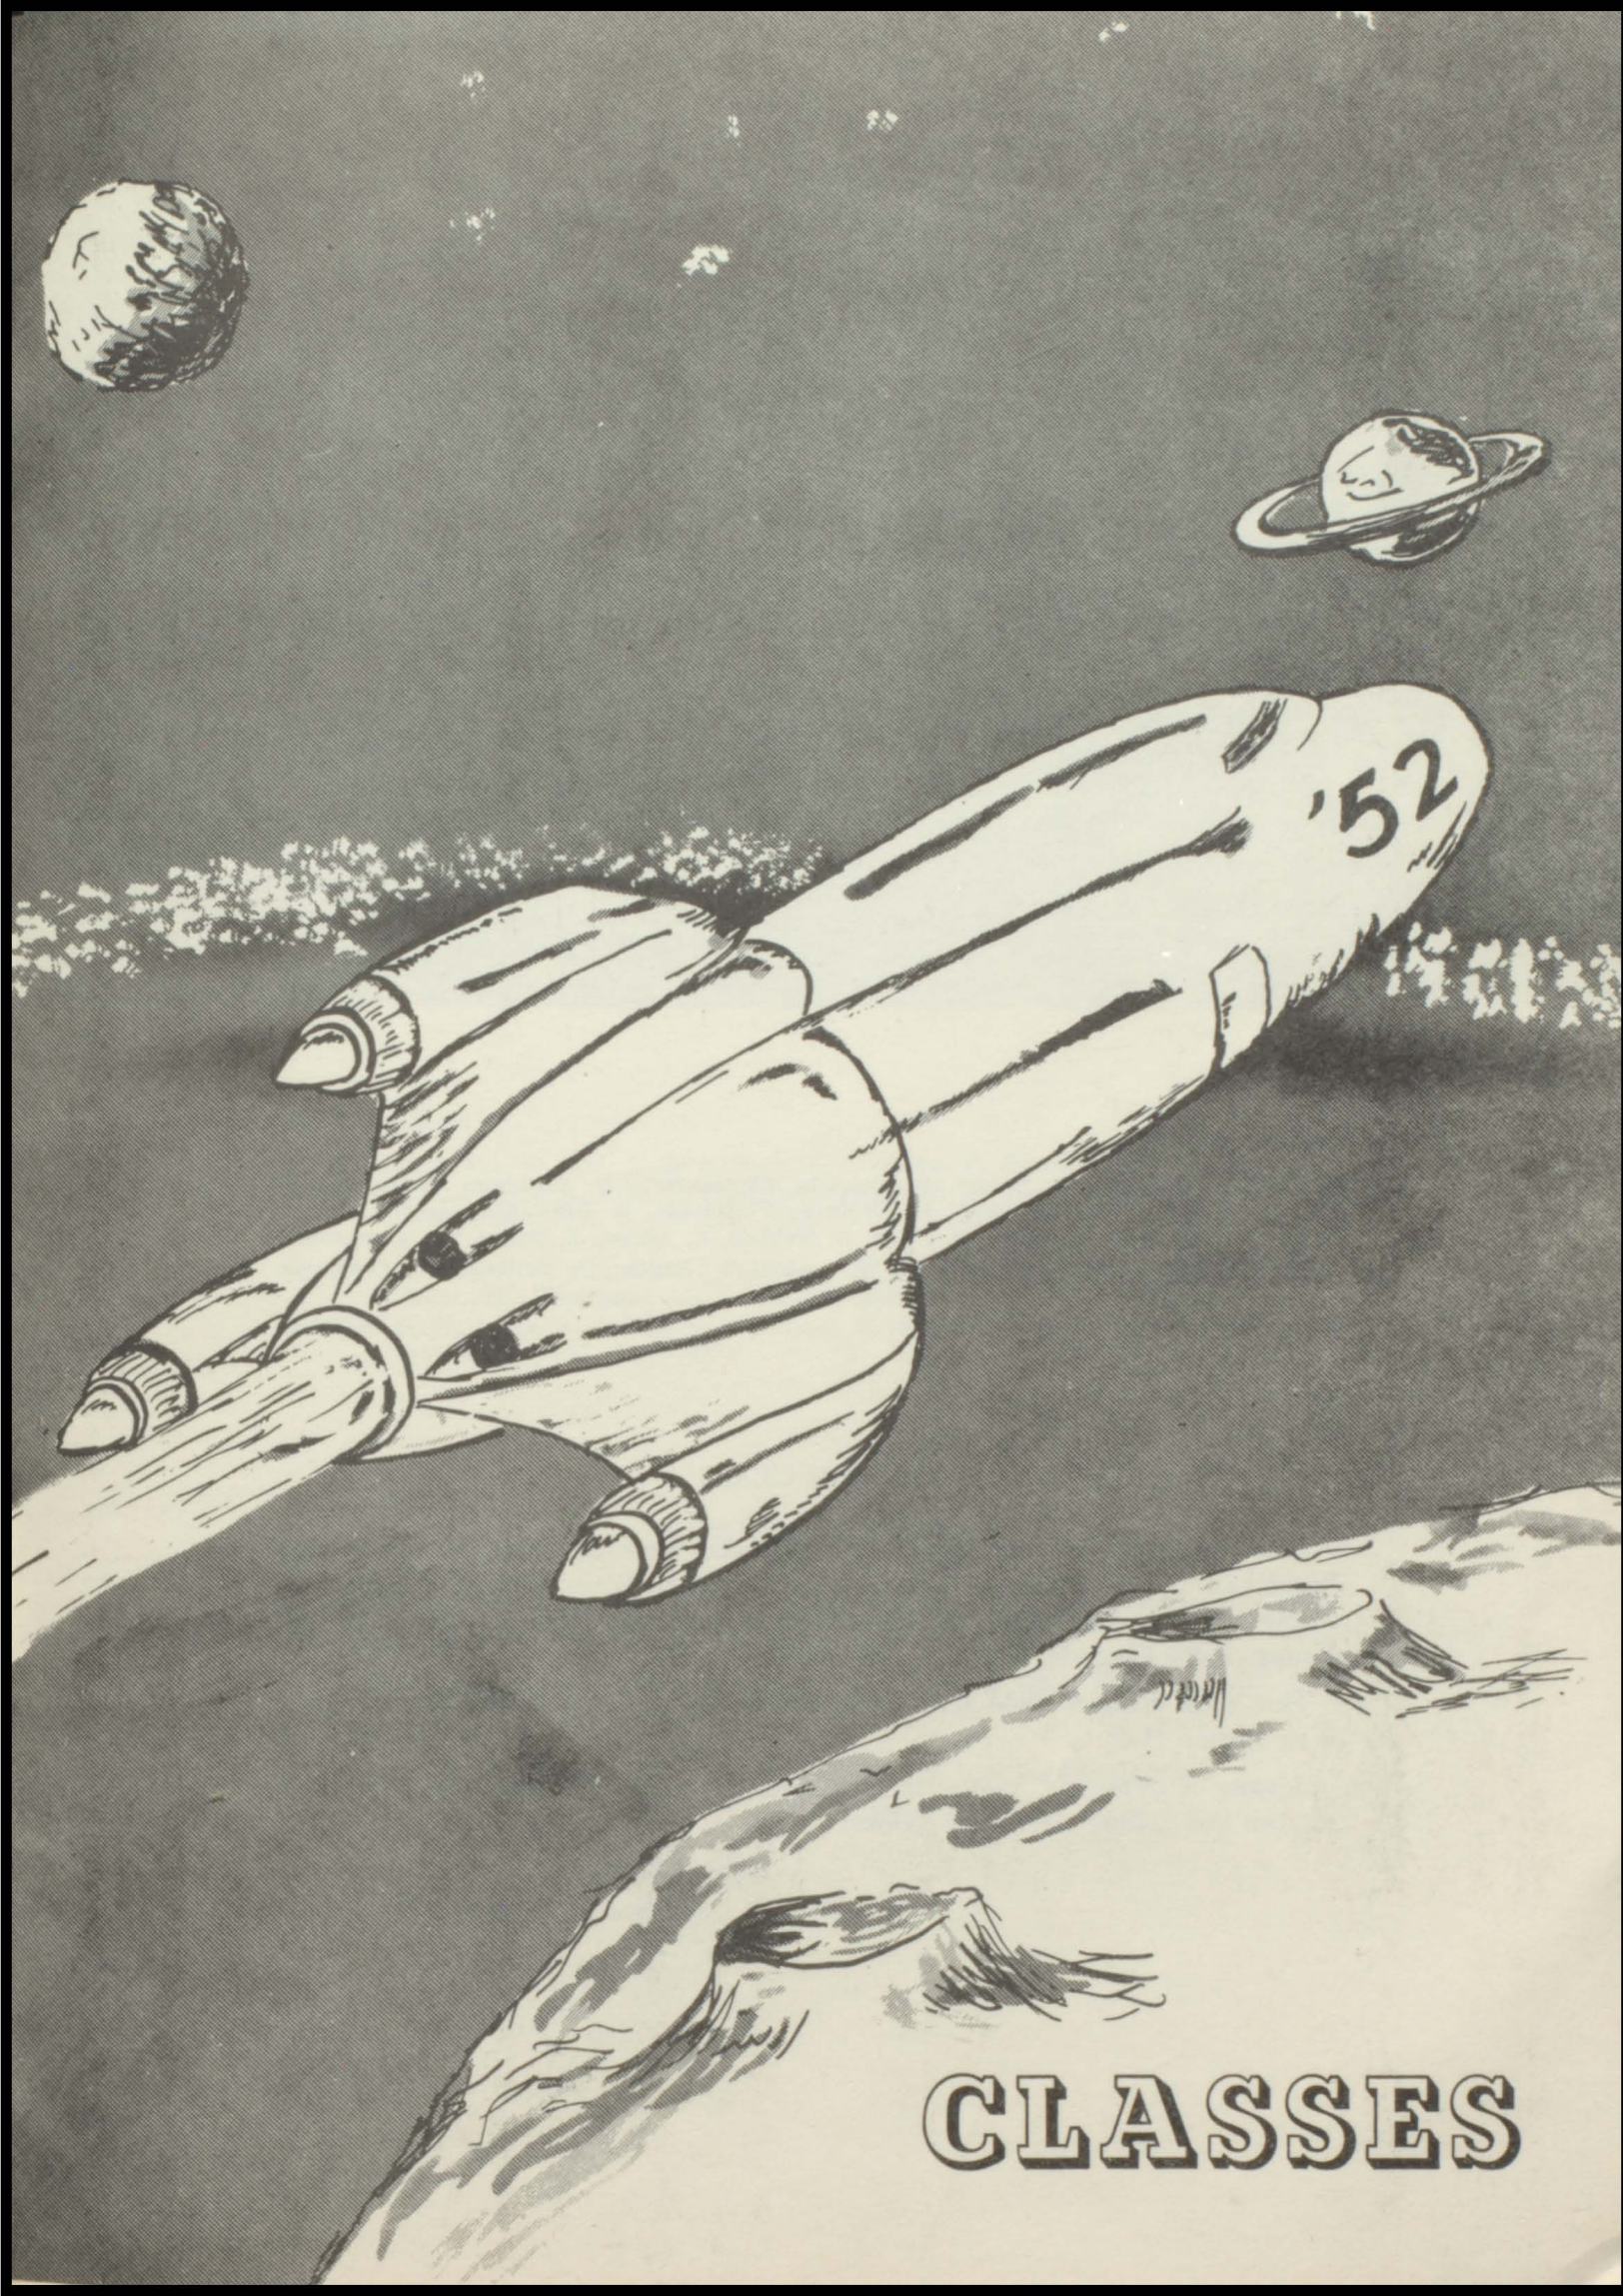

The party is complete and the V-52 begins the long flight back to the Alma Mater.

"TO THE BEST"

Connie Lattrell
John Burbank

1. To Barbie we give a nurses cap, remember, don't sit on the doctor's lap.
2. Now Donnie you really need this "Chevie", to go for a ride with a certain gal, Bevie.
3. To John we give this star, hope it rises,
don't walk away with all the prizes.
4. Peanut, to you we give this thermometer,
now you can "take care" of a certain Gardner.
5. To Charlene we give these beauty books, so she can always keep her looks.
6. Now Allene, we give you this notebook, be wary, better hurry and write to a certain Gary.
7. Now Bea, we give you a little red kite,
hope you'll always fly it with a certain Knight.
8. To Flora we give a megaphone, now tell us when (?)
you'll belong to a certain guy - Glen -
9. To Dorothy we present this sweet little ring, we certainly hope it's just the thing.
10. To Jack we give a brand new car,
so he won't have to drive his father's so far.
11. To Connie we give this little tin soldier, now, while he's away Connie, keep that vow.
12. To Cloy we give this private 'phone, it's a dial, don't write every day Cloy, talk for a while.
13. Pat M. we give you a microphone, it's new,
now speak up gal, so we can all hear you.
14. Jean we give you a cup, the pattern is Lee,
now you can make a hot cup of "T".
15. Now Carroll we give a book of knowledge,
we know you won't have any trouble at college.
16. Nancy we give this recipe book, sooner or later you'll just have to cook.
17. To Lawrence we give a very loud tie, now the gals won't be able to pass you by.
18. Pat O. we give this jar of Vicks, to help you with those crying tricks.
19. To Sandra we give a ruler so stout,
use it often teacher, you won't have to shout.
20. To Paul we give a "Fountain of Youth", alas,
now you can start school all over, in Sandra's class.
21. To Donna, let's give her a bright shiny car, don't wait Donna, 'cause we know you'll go far.
22. To Evie, we give you a yard of string, tie one end to your finger, the other to your ring.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The B.H.S. girls' basketball team won the 1951-1952 runners-up trophy in the Champlain Valley League, losing only to Vergennes. The season's record of 15 games resulted in 10 victories and 5 defeats, the losses being to the strong Burlington, Vergennes, and Waterbury teams. Co-captains Sandra Sturgeon and Marie Carl, together with Patty Desorda, did most of the scoring, while Doris Rathbun and Marjorie Young helped veteran Ruth Nelson in the back court. Next year Barbara Hier and Carolee Scribner will probably fill the vacant forward berths. The Junior Varsity Girls lost several close decisions, but finally won their last game at Waterbury, to eke out one victory in 6 starts.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The officers elected this year were: President, John Burbank; Vice President, Patricia Orvis; Secretary, Barbara Baslow; and Treasurer, Rebecca Orvis. Mr. Paul Andrews was our new adviser who took Mr. LeBaron's place.

The most important legislation was as follows: Clean-up Campaign, which worked well this year; arrangement of period schedule; conduct bills; two assemblies and other projects.

In April, six representatives were sent to the State Convention. These members were: John Burbank, Rebecca Orvis, Arthur Prime, Ruth Murphy, Charles Fuller and Billy Wisell.

ROW 3: J. Leonard, S. Smith, R. Bedard, J. Burbank.

DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic Club sponsored a three act play "Almost Eighteen", starring Robert Bedard as Eddie, the almost eighteen boy, and Charlene Craig as his ideal girl friend. Bill Paine as the dad who remembered when he was a boy, and Patricia Orvis as a typical mother. The play was very well received and we made quite a sum of money for the seniors.

We also helped on many school assemblies.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Commercial Club, consisting of sixteen members, mostly Juniors, elected the following officers: President, Flora Hanson; Vice President, Doris Rathbun; Secretary, Marjorie Young; and Treasurer, Lorraine Lathrop.

During the year we saw two movies on how to be a "super-secretary", and received some useful tips from our much appreciated advisor, Mrs. Andrews.

We issued three school newspapers for the months of March, April, and May, which were quite successful.

At the final meeting held in the Home Economics room, a surprise shower was bestowed upon Mrs. Andrews which was followed by refreshments.
